

An all-free FEAC service:

U.S. Culture Club: Iconic American Movies

“The Last of the Mohicans”

Open to everybody interested in the U.S. culture and its great movies:
30 seats available

WHEN:

Tuesday, July 5,
15:00-18:00

Register by Tuesday, July 5, 12 noon at FEAC@fulbright.ro

WHERE:

Fulbright Educational
Advising Center (FEAC),
2 Inginer N. Costinescu St.
(bus: Piața Dorobanților, metro: Piața Victoriei)

Based on James Fenimore Cooper’s novel of the same name, “The Last of the Mohicans” (1992) starring Daniel Day-Lewis and Madeleine Stowe is a historical adventure film set in 1757, as the British and French are battling for control of North America.

In the midst of the French and Indian War, three trappers protect and befriend the daughters of a British Colonel. Ready for an epic story of honor, loyalty, and love? Watch the movie with the U.S. Embassy-FEAC team and discuss the film’s take on Native Americans as a significant part of the U.S. culture!

